Time as Lover is the understanding that one of the tools for upholding the current state of violence against humans and ecosystems is a time keeping system that acts as a micromanaging master that keeps people in line for consumption and disconnected from cosmic and terrestrial rhythms, effectively keeping guns firing on time.

Time as Lover is the knowing that we have the ability to return to a much more relevant, sensual and respectful relationship with time. One where time is a lover; the kind of lover that deserves and reciprocates worship, the kind of lover that teaches us about ourselves by showing us our reflection next to the moon's in a river.

Time as Lover is remembering that we all come from ancestors that kept time according to their relationship with the earth and cosmos. Fishing peoples keep time with the moon to know the tides, agricultural people keep time with the sun to know the seasons and all people keep time with the planets and stars to know themselves.

Time as Lover is a bridge into the past and future in search of time keeping systems that remind us plants are mirrors into micro and macro cosmic cycles and that we are plants too. If you are sick of feeling that time is keeping you inside of lines that you want to cross, consider yourself a collaborator.
